THERE is as yet no olus to the identity of the three Chinese who, are said to have ontered a Wellington Street shop last week with revolvers and cleared it out of $1200. It is hinted that the whole affair is a hoar, invented to cover financial mysteries; but there is no authority for the insignation. Some people siways want a few men killed, as a guarantee of good faith.

Br a coincidence, at the German cruiser Kauser was experimenting with the electric light in Amoy Harbour on the night of the 12th November, she saw in the middle of the harbour some eight sailors from the Princess Wilhelm struggling in the water from a capaized sampan. She at once lowered a launch and saved all but one, who was drowned and whose body was after wards found floating in the harbour. Had it not been for the electric light all would have been drowned

THE N. C. Daily News, whose statements on important autiects of this nature. are, as a general rule, reliable, publishes the following extraordinary paragraph :- Captain W. M. Lang, R.N., has been begged to undertake the reorganisation of the Chinese navy, and we understand that he will undertake it at the request of Lord Salisbury, if the very fullest powers are secured to him, but on no other terms.' Why, in the name of all that is rightsons, should the British Fremier contern himself about the reorganization of the Chinese Navy ?

Some friends of the late Sir Thomas Wade. Professor of Chinese at Cambridge, propose to raise and offer to the University a sum of money sufficient to provide for the compiletion of a catalogue of the large and important collection of Chinese literature which during his lifetime he presented to the University library. The estimated cost of make ing and printing the ostologue is £100. The completion of such a catalogue would not only derve se some recognition of the eminent generosity and loyalty which the On Sunday morning, between 0 and 10.50 late British Minister to China showed to wards the University, but would also make his gift accessible and useful to students of ing the Bethel flag, will call slongelde any Chinese literature. Christmas comes but once a, year ' is a maxim applicable enough, with its full context, if the name of the festival be altered to St. Androw's Day, which for the time at any rate has all the appearance of being the greatest feast-day in the calcudar. is especially prominent in the Far East, for Christmas is not Christmas here, whereas the Scotch Ball loses nothing but rather gains in importance from the peculiar circumatances of foreign communities in the Orient. It is remarkable how Scottish national sentiment intensifies further and Burus as freely as if they had read him at did the worthy Attorney General of his Home. The Menu last night was headed Wherever I wander, wherever I rove, The hills of the Highlands for over I love, -a very fine sentiment, whether it rhymes or not, and very true, for the more they wander the more they love the place thay wander from: Some of them wander from Glasgow, which is not very hilly, but that does not interfere with their love for the Highlands.

feeling is mainly responsible for the stordy growth of St. Androw's Societies in remote places, and is thus the cause which the general or cosmopolitan community has to thank for magnificent dances such as that given last night; so, though there are small eccentricities occasionally manifested in the development of the national spirit, it hair is a great boon to the world at large, and any frivolous comments verge on ungratefulness. So, while we cannot help being amused at the heroic attempts to Scotticise | Hongkong. a Menu containing such things as Kobs beef and Vanila ice cream, which look incongruous among Buchan Baps and Partans and Chuckies, we must not stint the similar message to Singapore last night, should praise due to the providers thereof, for it but no reply has come yet. is very great. THE ART OF RECOLLECTING.

A CHAT WITH PROPESSOR LOISETTE. It would, one would think, be impossible to obtain for any new system of education a more weighty list of testimonials than those by which men of unquestionable standing in the intellectual world have given the impress of their approval to Professor Loisette's system for improving bad memories. Colone Ingersoil, for example, says that 'it is very useful to the best of memories, and invaluable to the moderate or poor memory. Francis Wilson, one of the most popular comedians on the American stage, writes:-. You have taught me how to memorise at a single perusal what I formarly could only learn by a series of endless repetitions The Times of Indialdescribes the system as 'A revelation—something like a new sense; whilst the New York Tribune says that Professor Loisette's success as a teacher o his system and a lecturor has been remark-

In answer to a query as to whether there was really balm in Gilead for the very had memories that some folks seem to have, the Professor said:- I not only cure bud momories, but also mindwandering, which is the cause of ninetenths of the bad memories you meet with. Furthermore, I do it in a perfectly natural way, without any attempt to perform miracles, or to make use of artificial means. And now touching your remedy for mind wandering?'- Well, if you do not concentrate your mind upon what you hear or see, you will certainly not get a very definite impression, and if you do not get a definite impression there is nothing for the mind to react upon; so that in strengthening the powers of memory you naturally strengthen also the powers of attention. What is your method of teaching, Profeasor Loisette ?' -- How to increase the powers of attention, I develop in the three lectures that will follow the Popular lecture to be delivered in the City Hall next Monday evening. In the entire course I am able to impart the whole of my system to anybody of average comprehension. In fact, as the result of my lectures, I never have had a failure. I had occasional failures when taught by correspondence, because the system was then spread over six books. Since then I have compressed it in one volume for review or reference and it is consequently much simplified?" . What do you mean by saying that you have never had a failure as the result of vour lectures ?'- 'Well, I mean that those who attend the instructional course get hold of the entire theory, that when I go away popular lecture is very important, because it mischief on the spot where it begins, and then contains the basic principles of the whole purifies the blood. system. It is also very interesting—though By the aid of common sense and Mother I say it myself. The fact is, however, that Seigel the Emperor might have stayed on his the subject in all its phases is brimful of interest, because nothing is more universal than bad memorice, and I am the first to attempt to mend them on scientific prin-

· How did you come to make a study of the anbicot? 1- 'As a youth I had a particularly bad memory, and under the advice of my teacher I betook myself to the study of mnemonies, and it was whilst attempting to improve my own memory upon the systems then in force that I made what has since been admitted was a new discovery.

'One hears of people who, after once reading a column of print, can repeat it verbatim ?'- Even Idiote can do that. De Maudsley tells of an idiot in the Earlswood Anylum who could do it, and he tells of another idiot who could perform the same feat backwards. The senaucus memory is prone to that sort of thing, but the sensuous memory is fleeting. Nature has, however, provided us with the most prodigious outlit for the highest assimilative memory, so that hobody need ever forget anything that is worth remembering. My standard of memorising is to be able to learn a book in a single reading-not verbatim, though that pan be done -- but to assimilate all the ideas in it—to make them part of oneself. To my mind, no graduate of a college is worthy his degree unless he can do that.'

A bright intellect and a good memory do not always seem to go together?'- No. but they ought to go together. The bright intellect possesses the possibility of a perfect memory, but the trouble is that people are not taught to use their assimilative memories. They learn to depend upon their sensuous memories, and the sensuous memory betrays them. Then, again, whilst the assimilative memory improves with age, the sensuous memory loses its power quite early in life. You cannot mention a case of bad memory that I could not oure unless the person is in a lunatic asylum-or ought

Two Yorkshiremen had been on a trip to Blackpool and were on their way home, when one noticed that his companion was carrying a bottle half filled with sea water. Why, what 'ave-yer got there, Bill?' he asked. Well, yer see, was the reply, my ould woman hasua' each t' sea, so I thought I'd take her a drop. But, said the first, while ver were doing it why didn't yer take a full bottle?" Not mai' was the answer; 'what should I has done when the tide began a-rising and broke the bottle?'

WHAT EMPEROR WAS THIS? He was one of the greatest monarchs that over raied in Europe. He was always at war, yet-but wait; let us take one thing at a time. He was an enermous eater. He brakfasted at five on a fowl seethed in milk and dresged with sugar and spices. After this he went to sloop again. He dined at twelve, always partaking of twenty dishes. He supped twice; first-early in the evening and again about one o'clock the latter the most solid meal of the four. After meat he ate a great quantity of pastry and sweets, washing them down with vast draughts of beer and wine. Then he would gorge himself on sardine omelettes, fried sausages, eel pies, pickled partridges, fat capons, &c., &c.

Finally he abdicated, did this omnivorous Emperor, and a friendly courtier thus described the power that compelled him to do it. "'Tis most truculent executioner." said the orator: "it invades the whole body from head to foot. It contracts the nerves with anguish, it freezes the marrow, it converts the fluids of the joints into chalk, and pauses not until it has exhausted the body and conquered the mind by immense TAINS. The YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK

He was crippled in the neck, arms, knees, and hands, and covered with chronic skin eruptions; while his stomuch occasioned him constant suffering. He was a wreck at an aga when he should still have been active and vigorous. This is not fiction, it is history; without a syllable of exaggeration. How many of our readers will write and tell us what man this was? A thousand, no doubt. Alack-a day! however. Not kings and emperors alone are thus afflicted. Great hosts of us travel the same roul. We are not usually gluttons as this royal gentleman was, but people who eat sparingly often have the same malady. Commonly they inherit a tendency to it. the level of this dreadful disease the rich and the poor, the great and the small, meet together. Speaking of an experience of her own, a woman says. "My lands became stiff and numb. There seemed to be no feeling in them. I was so crippled that I could not even cut a round of bread. A little later it attacked my logs and feet, the soles of the latter being very tender and sore. The pain was so severe that I often sat down and cried on account of my sufferings and my helplessness. I used rubbing oils and embracations, but got no relief. In this way I went on month after month, never expecting to be well again. I felt the first signs of illness in February, 1889. At first I had merely a bad tasto in the month, no appetite, and was low, tired, and languid. Following this came the agonies of rheumatism, as I have said. I owe my recovery to a suggestion of my husband's. He advised me to try Mother Seigel's Carative Syrup, and got me a bottle from Mr. W. Simpson's, in North Street. After taking it for a fortnight my hands got their right feeling, and I suffered no more from rheumstism nor from indigestion and dyspepsia, which I now understand to be the cause of rhoumatism. From that time to this I have been in the best of health. (Signed) (Mrs.) Elizabeth Ann Cook, Southwell Lane, North Street, Horneastle, Lincolnahure, February 1st, 1893." "In the year 1879," writes another, "rhenmatism attacked me, one joint after another. The pains were all over me, although the worst was in one knee... For two years I suffered with it—the dector's medicines doing no good. In 1881 I read in a little book that rheumatism was caused by indigestion and dyspepsis, and that the true cure for it was Mother Seigel's Syrup. This proved to be true, as after taking three bottles I knew no more of stomach disorder nor thoumatism. I have since recommended this wonderful remedy to hundreds of persons, (Signed) (Mrs.) E. Schofield, 10, West Hill Southampton Street, Reading, Oct. 26, 1892." The great Emperor was driven to abdication by rhoumatism and gout, caused by his rained digestive powers. His outraged stomach filled him with poison from top to toe. Yet he never lost his appetite, which was all the worse for him. Not long afterwards he died, having asthma and gravel, with the other consequences of dyspepsia.
